Getting around Amsterdam

Leaving Schiphol Airport

Train

Direct trains to the Amsterdam Centraal station run every 10 to 15 minutes between 06:00 and 00:30, and the trip takes 15 to 20 minutes. Second class tickets are EUR 5.10 and can be purchased either at the ticket desk on the arrivals level or at the yellow machines using Euro coins or credit/debit cards. Tickets can also be bought online. These trains leave from platforms 1, 2 or 3, which are all one floor below the airport terminal.

Find more information on buying tickets online here:

<http://adaminfo.rgi.ticketbar.eu/en/ticketbar-amsterdam/train-from-schiphol-to-amsterdam-/>

Buses

Buses depart every 30 minutes between 05:40 and 23:40. Tickets cost EUR 5 for a single journey and can be bought directly from the driver. The bus station is located outside the main entrance to the arrivals and train station level. It takes about 30 minutes to get to Amsterdam city using a bus. Please note that there is limited service over the weekends.

Schiphol Hotel shuttles

Shuttles leave the airport every 10 minutes between 06:00 and 21:00, from platform A7 outside the main entrance of the arrivals and train station level. A single journey amounts to EUR 17 for an adult and EUR 8 for children. Shuttles offer door-to-door services and may offer a complimentary airport shuttle service, depending on the chosen hotel.

Taxi

Taxis can be taken outside the main entrance of the arrivals and train station level. The journey takes only 20 minutes in off-peak hours and costs between EUR 40 and EUR 50. Please note that only official taxis should be used. Do not take a taxi that is offered to you at any other place.

Using public transport

Amsterdam boasts an impressive public transport network, including metros, buses, trams, ferries and trains, to help you get around the capital.

The public transport app, 9292, provides for detailed travel advice for Amsterdam's public transport network (available on Android, iOS, Blackberry and the web).

Find more information on the public transport app, 9292, here: <http://9292.nl/en>

Or you can also download the map: <https://assets.gvb.nl/plattegronden/Lijnenkaart2018-2.pdf>

Accessibility of public transport

Public transport operator GVB can provide specific information about accessibility on Amsterdam trams, buses and metro trains. For example, route folders and timetables indicate which transport stops are not wheelchair accessible, or which trams and bus services are not equipped with an accessibility ramp. Metro stations typically offer lift access and a wider check-in port for wheelchairs.

Find more information on accessibility here: <https://en.gvb.nl/reizen/toegankelijk-ov>

Bus

Amsterdam's bus network is extensive, connecting all neighbourhoods with other city areas and extending outwards into the Amsterdam Metropolitan Area.

The main bus companies include GVB (operating primarily within Amsterdam), Connexion (R-Net) and EBS, with many routes operating to and from Amsterdam Centraal Station. Single-journey tickets or one-hour tickets can usually be purchased directly from the driver. However, it is well worth considering options such as 24-hour, 48-hour, 72-hour or 96-hour tickets (valid on GVB services).

The Amsterdam & Region Travel Ticket is also excellent value if you plan to explore the region. All buses have check-in and check-out ports, meaning that travellers in possession of a public transport chip card (OV-Chipkaart) can travel for less, paying only for the distance actually travelled.

Find more information here: <http://www.iamsterdam.com/en/visiting/plan-your-trip/getting-around/public-transport/bus>

Bus map: <http://en.gvb.nl/reisinformatie/plattegronden/Pages/Lijnennetkaart.aspx>

Ferry

Amsterdam's ferries provide essential, free connections across the River IJ for pedestrians, cyclists and mopeds. Many of these blue-and-white ferries can be found directly behind Amsterdam Centraal Station, providing a frequent and free service across the water to and from Amsterdam Noord.

The ride to Buiksloterweg is the most direct (five minutes) and runs 24 hours a day. It is the best way to reach the EYE Film Institute and Tolhuistuin. Another boat runs to NDSM-werf (15 minutes) between 07:00 and midnight (from 09:00 on weekends). Another goes to IJplein (06:30 to midnight). Bicycles are permitted on all ferries.

Metro

All of Amsterdam's metro stations are gated by check-in and check-out ports, accessible only with a public transport chip card (OV-Chipkaart) or another valid travel card. If you are not in possession of a personal chip card, you can purchase a one-hour ticket or a rechargeable non-personalized public transport chip card at GVB service desks or vending machines at the station. Please note that the metro stations do not have manned service desks, but there may be an assistant on hand to help at ticket machines. Apart from Amsterdam Centraal Station, only two of the current metro stations are centrally located (Nieuwmarkt and Waterlooplein). For getting around in the city centre, you might consider walking, cycling or taking the tram and buses. However, the metro network is an especially efficient way to travel around the edges of the city.

Find more information here: <http://www.iamsterdam.com/en/visiting/plan-your-trip/getting-around/public-transport/metro>

Metro map: <http://maps.gvb.nl/nl/lijnen?metro&show=away>

Tram

Amsterdam's tram service runs frequently and reliably throughout the city, with Amsterdam Centraal Station serving as a main hub. There are two tram "stations" outside the front of Centraal Station – one on the east side, and one on the west side. They are just a short walk apart and, from both areas, trams go towards the city centre before radiating outwards to various neighbourhoods and districts.

When travelling by tram in Amsterdam, most locals make use of the public transport chip card (OV-Chipkaart), checking in and out at the start and end of their journeys (and whenever they change trams). However, it is possible to purchase a one-hour ticket aboard the majority of Amsterdam trams. A ticket attendant sits in a booth towards the rear of most trams; otherwise, the driver at the front can assist you. You can also purchase 24-hour and 48-hour tickets aboard the tram (valid only for GVB services, including buses and metro). You can buy other types of tickets at GVB Tickets & Info offices or GVB ticket vending machines.

Cars and taxi service

- Driving in Amsterdam

Just a few reminders:

- In the Netherlands, you drive on the right.
- Safety belts are compulsory in both the front and back seats.

- If you are driving a motor vehicle, you must ensure that it does not produce unnecessary noise.
- Remember to come equipped with your international Green Card insurance.
- For motorbikes and scooters, the wearing of helmets is compulsory for both drivers and passengers.

Speed limits in urban areas are 50km/h (30mph); on main roads, 100km/h (62mph); on motorways, 130km/h (80mph); and on all other roads, 80km/h (49mph). There are a few service stations within Amsterdam and you will inevitably find some on the way in to the city.

- Parking in Amsterdam

Amsterdam is easy to navigate by car, but to make the most of your trip, there are some factors to keep in mind, especially when it comes to parking. Because of the compact layout of the city and the limited number of (affordable) parking spaces, Park+Ride locations on the edge of the city are a great option.

Find more information on Park+Ride here: <http://www.iamsterdam.com/en/visiting/plan-your-trip/getting-around/parking/park-and-ride>

The digital parking system in Amsterdam means that you need to enter your registration plate details into the parking meter when you pay for (on-street) parking. You don't need to display a parking receipt in your car, but you can still print a copy for your own administration. Your number plate now serves as your "receipt", and Cition (the local parking authority) can simply scan it to see if you have paid. Please note that Amsterdam's parking meters do not accept cash or coins. Payment can be made only using a Dutch bank card or any major international credit card.

You can also use your mobile phone to pay for parking. The five-digit number for phone parking is displayed on the street signs.

Find more information on parking here: <http://www.iamsterdam.com/en/visiting/plan-your-trip/getting-around/parking>
<http://www.iamsterdam.com/en/visiting/plan-your-trip/getting-around/parking/parking-in-amsterdam>

- Taxi service

Taxis can be handy if you are travelling late at night when the trams have stopped running or when you are running late.

Taxi regulations

- The taxi meter will always be turned on and you will receive a receipt upon completion of the journey. Always store this receipt carefully as it contains all the information about the trip and the taxi.
- Taxi drivers must always accept short trips.
- Taxi drivers must deliver you safely to your destination via the shortest/quickest route.

Transparent fees: rates for 2017

Taxi car (maximum four passengers)

- Maximum start price: EUR 2.98
- Maximum price per kilometre: EUR 2.19
- Maximum price per minute: EUR 0.36

Taxi bus (five to eight passengers)

- Maximum start price: EUR 6.06
- Maximum price per kilometre: EUR 2.76
- Maximum price per minute: EUR 0.41

Waiting rate: EUR 38.98 per hour.

Hailing a taxi

The Amsterdam city centre is a myriad of roads, lanes and footpaths. Because space is limited, it is easiest to hail a taxi from taxi stands located throughout the city. View a map of Amsterdam's fixed taxi stands.

Biking Amsterdam

Biking in Amsterdam is safe and easy, thanks to the flat landscape and multitude of wide bike paths. Everybody is on a bike; cycling is the most egalitarian mode of transport in Amsterdam.

Cyclists are required to use the mandatory cycle track. If there is a break in the mandatory cycle track or in a cycle/motor cycle track, cyclists are required to use the main carriageway.

Bike rental in Amsterdam

Bike rental shops are spread across the city and are very popular with locals.

Travel documents and medication

General visa information

A short-stay Schengen visa may be required for travellers who are not nationals of the Netherlands, the Schengen Area or certain visa-exempt countries. This visa allows a person to visit the Netherlands and other Schengen countries on a temporary basis for tourism or business purposes for up to 90 days within a 180-day period. It must be applied for at the relevant Dutch embassy, consulate or representing Schengen consular office in the delegate's country of residence. If you want to leave and re-enter the Schengen area within the 180-day period, choose the multiple-entry option when making your visa application.

To enter the Netherlands, all delegates must be in possession of:

- A valid passport or other travel document that has been issued within the past 10 years and that will be valid for another three months after the date you intend to leave the Netherlands or the Schengen area. Your passport must have at least two blank pages.
- A valid visa (if required).

For general information on visa applications, please visit this website. If you need some advice or clarity on the processes, please contact a Dutch embassy or consulate, or email visa@aid2018.org.

Transit visas

Citizens of some countries will also need an airport transit visa in order to stop over at an airport in another country, such as the United States. If you are transiting, please contact the relevant consulate of the transit airport's country to request a transit visa. For more information, please contact the AIDS 2018 Visa team at visa@aid2018.org.

Travel and health insurance

We strongly advise that you arrange sufficient travel insurance to cover unexpected events or costs, including any health emergencies. The conference organizers cannot accept liability for personal injuries, loss or damage to property belonging to conference delegates (or their accompanying persons) either during or as a result of the conference. Please visit this list of Schengen-approved insurance companies to cover your own travel or health insurance for your visit to the Netherlands.

Travelling with medication

Please check whether the medicine you would like to take with you to the Netherlands falls under the Opium Act with your pharmacist, or consult List I (heavy painkillers and ADHD medication) and List II (sleeping pills and drugs to reduce anxiety) of the Opium Act. If your medicine falls under the Opium Act, you will need to have a Schengen certificate. You can download the form to apply for a Schengen certificate here.

Examples of medicines that fall under the Opium Act are:

- Strong painkillers
- Sleeping pills and drugs to reduce anxiety, such as Valium or Seresta
- Medication for ADHD, such as Ritalin or Concerta
- Medicinal cannabis.

Your doctor must sign your Schengen certificate, indicating that the medicine you are taking to the Netherlands is necessary for your child's use or your own use. The certificate is then checked and declared legally valid by the Central Administrative Office (CAK). Please note that the Schengen certificate is valid only for a 30-day period. If you are travelling to the Netherlands or the Schengen area for more than 30 days, you must have multiple, successive Schengen certificates.

If you take medicines that fall under the Opium Act with you to the Netherlands without a Schengen certificate, you will risk facing a severe penalty under local law. Please consult your nearest Dutch embassy or consulate if you have any questions.

Carry your prescription and/or a certificate from your doctor (written in English) with you. Also, carry your medication in your hand luggage, bringing only the amount of drugs you require, and keep medication in its original packaging if possible. For more information, please visit this website.

Vaccinations

No vaccinations are required in order to visit the Netherlands.

Other practical information

Banks and currency

There are exchange bureaus throughout central Amsterdam, particularly in the more tourist-oriented districts. Dutch banks are usually your best option for a fair rate. Another choice is the chain of GWK exchange offices scattered throughout the city, including one branch in Amsterdam's Centraal Train Station, which is open 24 hours a day.

Withdrawing Euros from ATMs is not only convenient, but will often guarantee you the best exchange rate. Most places in Amsterdam accept credit cards. However, make sure that you check with your bank before your arrival in Amsterdam so that you are aware of any extra fees that may be charged to your account for using ATMs and credit cards in the Netherlands. If your bank is in the Eurozone, you should not be charged extra fees for ATM withdrawals or credit card use.

On 1 January 2002, along with 11 other Member States of the European Union, the Netherlands adopted the Euro currency. These notes and coins can be used in any country belonging to the Eurozone: Austria, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Portugal and Spain.

- €1 is divided into 100 centimes or cents.
- Notes: €5, €10, €20, €50, €100, €200 and €500.
- Coins: 5, 10, 20 and 50 cents; €1 and €2.

Business and shopping hours

Regular shopping hours in Amsterdam:

Monday: 12:00-18:00

Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday & Saturday: 09:00-18:00
Thursday: (late-night shopping) 09:00-21:00
Sunday: 12:00-17:00

(Sunday hours mostly reflect shops located on or near the Nieuwendijk and Kalverstraat. In other areas, you may find that only a selection of the shops is open on Sundays).

Amsterdam museums are open daily, staying open until late, 21:00 or 22:00, once a week. And most museums and attractions in Amsterdam are open on public holidays, though opening hours may vary. If you are planning to visit on one of these days, we recommend checking the museum's website beforehand for alternative public holiday opening hours.

Climate and clothing

Summers in Amsterdam are generally warm, averaging 18°C with occasional colder periods. Rain can be expected throughout the year, so it is best to pack a jacket and a raincoat.

Drug laws

The Dutch have divided drugs into two groups, depending on their influence on human health – soft drugs and hard drugs.

Hard drugs, such as cocaine, LSD, morphine and heroin, are forbidden in the Netherlands although drug use is not prosecuted, only drug sale. In case of an emergency, users of illegal drugs are strongly advised to indicate the drugs they have used in order to allow health workers to operate adequately. This for your safety and health, and they will not involve law enforcement at any time.

Soft drugs, such as cannabis in all its forms (weed, hashish, hash oil) and hallucinogenic mushrooms (so called magic mushrooms or paddos – from Dutch: paddestoel = mushroom), are legal for “personal use”. As a result, smoking of cannabis, even in public, is not prosecuted. Neither is selling it, although technically, it is still illegal under the Opium Act (the Act dates from 1919, and cannabis was added as drug in 1950). Cannabis use is widely tolerated provided that it happens in a limited, controlled way (for example, in a coffee shop, small portions, 5 grams' maximum transaction, sale only to adults, no minors on the premises, no advertising of drugs). Please note that coffee shops are the only safe place to acquire legal drugs.

The sale of most of hallucinogenic mushrooms was forbidden from 1 November 2008. More than 200 different mushrooms were put on the banned list; the Opium Act regards them as being as dangerous as cocaine or heroin.

In the Netherlands, there are strict laws limiting quantities of the allowed soft drugs, conditions of their sale and use. Driving under the influence of soft drugs is equal to driving under the influence of alcohol.

Electricity

In the Netherlands, the norm is 230 volts, with a frequency of 50Hz, while in the United States or Canada, for example, it is 110 volts for 60Hz. Voltage and sockets vary from country to country and so an adapter might be necessary. Universal adapters are available throughout the city and at Schiphol/Amsterdam Airport. Most hotels will also have adapters or USB plug-in points available.

Engagement tours

The engagement tours provide delegates with unique learning experiences through interactive site visits to community-based organizations in Amsterdam. The goal is to exchange knowledge, best practices, successes, challenges and innovative solutions through dialogue and hands-on activities.

Tours are available to conference delegates at no cost. Registration will take place on a first-come, first-served basis. Tours are limited to one per delegate. As demand for the tours is high, we cannot guarantee space for all interested delegates.

Opioid substitution therapy (OST) will also be made available on request. The HRNZ will provide the following services:

While in Amsterdam, the International AIDS Society is required to follow rules and guidelines for provision of harm reduction services as determined by The Public Health Service (GGD) of Amsterdam.

Health services

- Accident and emergency (A&E) departments and emergency doctors

Bring identification and an insurance pass if possible when going to the A&E department. Everyone in the Netherlands is legally obliged to take out health insurance, and standard coverage will normally cover hospital treatment. In some situations, paying a deductible amount may be necessary.

The A&E department of a hospital is meant for serious situations requiring immediate specialist medical treatment. Going to the A&E department for treatment that in normal cases would be done by a GP will probably lead to having to pay out of the deductible portion (eigen risico) of the health insurance.

An emergency doctor's office exists for problems outside of regular doctor's hours. The service operates around the clock (24 hours) and is available at nights, on weekends and on public holidays.

The emergency number in Amsterdam is 112. The operator will connect you with an emergency doctor in your area.

- Pharmacies

In a pharmacy (in Dutch: apotheek), you can get some drugs that are sold only with a doctor's prescription. Additionally, pharmacies sell some non-prescription medicines that can also be bought at drugstores. The pharmacies are usually open Monday to Friday, from 09:00 to 17:30, but times may vary. For example, the pharmacy at Leidsestraat, located within a large drugstore, is open until 22:00.

At night and on the weekends, there is always some a pharmacy open on rotating shifts. To find an open pharmacy, call the central number for pharmacies (020 592 33 15) or go to the nearest pharmacy; the name of the pharmacy on duty will be displayed on the door or in the pharmacy window.

- Interpreters

Simultaneous interpretation from English to Russian will be provided for the opening ceremony, daily plenary sessions, special sessions and the closing session.

- Languages and helpful phrases

The official language in Amsterdam is Dutch, and English is widely spoken. You can get by effortlessly without knowing a word of Dutch. However, for those keen to try, learning a few words or phrases in Dutch will go a long way with the locals.

- Local Charitable Giving Programme

The Local Charitable Giving Programme financially supports a local project each year in the city that is hosting the International AIDS Conference or the IAS Conference on HIV Science.

Once the IAS selects the organization, delegates have the option to contribute to the programme through the registration process. Delegates can choose an amount to donate by ticking a box on the registration form (US$5, $15, $25 or $50). The funds collected are transferred to the organization or programme after the conference.

HIV Vereniging Nederland has been selected for the AIDS 2018 Local Charitable Giving Programme.

HIV Vereniging Nederland is an association of people living with HIV (PLHIV). It was founded in Amsterdam in 1987. HIV Vereniging Nederland's mission is to defend the interests of PLHIV at national policy level. It is involved in the setting up of Dutch healthcare and political and legal environments for PLHIV. It provides up-to-date legal and other relevant information to PLHIV and their relatives. It also offers mutual support and peer contacts for empowerment.

- National and international calls

The international access code to call abroad from the Netherlands is 00, plus the code of the country you wish to call.

When calling Amsterdam from abroad, dial 0031 for Holland and 20 for Amsterdam: 0031 20 (number).

For mobile use, while most international SIM cards can operate on Dutch networks, it is also possible to purchase a prepaid SIM card from high-street telecom shops. Contact your mobile phone operator, who will confirm whether or not your mobile is compatible with the Dutch network and also explain how you will be charged for calls received from your own country or that you make while abroad (local and international calls).

- Security and safety

Amsterdam is renowned for its friendly, welcoming ambience and prides itself on being a safe city. However, in order to ensure they enjoy their time in the city to the fullest, visitors are advised to keep basic health and safety considerations in mind and remain alert to petty crime, especially in crowded areas, public transport and the busy city centre.

Find more information on security here: <http://www.iamsterdam.com/en/visiting/plan-your-trip/practical-info/health-safety>

- Smoking laws

In 2004, the Netherlands enacted a smoke-free law covering public transportation and non-hospitality workplaces, except within separately ventilated rooms. The law was extended in July 2008, making shopping malls, tobacco shops, gaming establishments and convention centres smoke-free. The 2008 law also covers restaurants, cafés, bars, festival tents and nightclubs, except in separately ventilated areas not serviced by employees. Employees may be required to enter such smoking rooms only in emergencies.

Since the beginning of 2017, it is prohibited to smoke in all trains, stations, waiting areas and on platforms in Amsterdam. Special smoking areas have been created. There are designated smoking pillars where you can smoke and extinguish your cigarettes. The fine for smoking outside this area is EUR 25, and throwing your cigarette butt on the platform can cost you EUR 40.

- Taxes

All travellers staying in one of the following types of accommodation have a legal obligation to pay the tourist tax: tourist hotels, aparthotels, furnished rentals, bed & breakfasts, holiday villages, outdoor accommodation and youth hostels. The amount of tourist tax varies from €0.20 (for 1- and 2-star campsites) to €4 per person and per night.

This amount is not always included in the price of the accommodation; the hotelier, proprietor or owner could ask the traveller to pay it separately.

- Time zone

Amsterdam is in the Central European Time Zone. You can see Amsterdam's time in relation to most cities on the globe by visiting www.TimeAndDate.com.

- Tipping

Although all restaurants, pubs, cafés and hotels must include value added tax and tips in their published prices, leaving a tip is customary in the Netherlands. Generally, 5-10% of the total amount is a good guideline if you are just having a light snack and something to drink; 10-15% is acceptable for a more extensive meal.
